Conflict causes pain and distress - mediation helps resolve the issues

Who we are...

WKM is an independent charity that has been offering confidential and impartial mediation services to the local community for over twenty years. Our aim is to resolve conflict and the breakdown of relationships between individuals, organisations and communities within West Kent.

What we do...

Neighbour/Community Disputes

Noise, harassment and anti-social or abusive behaviour are some of the causes of conflict between neighbours and communities. Tensions can also arise from small disagreements which become major problems when left unresolved.

Mediation helps people to solve problems, gives them new communication skills whilst supporting and rebuilding relationships. The process reduces stress, raises self-esteem and empowers individuals.

Parent Teenager Mediation

Parents and teenagers often find themselves in conflict with each other, with many young people finding it difficult to express their feelings. Mediation is a helpful process that promotes healthy communication between parents and teens about their needs and concerns.

Homeless Mediation

Our aim is to prevent young people being made homeless due to a breakdown in family relationships. Mediation provides a safe and supported environment in which to explore differences and helps families start talking again.

Restorative Justice (RJ)

Restorative justice encourages communication between victims and offenders with the support of mediators. It enables all parties affected by a crime to understand what has happened and to move forward in a positive way. It helps victims to express their feelings safely and offenders to take responsibility for their action and its impact on others. RJ achieves high levels of victim satisfaction and a reduction in re-offending.

Restorative approaches are now recognised to be effective in resolving multi-party disputes within the community, schools, families and at work.

Restorative Practices within Schools

Peer mediation in schools involves training students to help their peers resolve conflicts in the classroom, playground, at home and in the wider community. Young people gain valuable life skills and the ability to communicate their needs more effectively. We also offer our service to schools when internal disputes require impartial resolution.

Anger Management Coaching

This is an effective and straightforward method for helping young people to deal with their anger and learn better ways of dealing with confrontation, problems and disappointments. Anger is a habit - habits can be changed.

Workplace Mediation

When conflict at work develops into a dispute, communication can become difficult or stop altogether. Mediation helps resolve complaints that include victimisation, harassment, discrimination and bullying. It can reduce the number of hours lost through stress and improve performance.

How it works...

All WKM's mediators are volunteers drawn from the local community. They are trained and supported by WKM's small staff team. They work in pairs, visiting each party separately in their own home to identify the issues involved. They help both sides to look at practical ways of moving forward so that improvements can be made and agreements reached.

Mediation is not a legal process and any agreements are not binding in law. You have a right to seek legal advice and mediation does not prevent parties from initiating other procedures. All mediation proceedings are conducted on a "without prejudice" basis - what is said during mediation proceedings will be confidential.
